STUDIO NOTES / INFORMATION

Privacy, in detail

Velunatrixes is a concept-studio website: a place to explore materials, studies and a preview request. This note describes the small amount of information involved in that visit.

01 / A visit to the studio

The visual studies can be explored without opening an account. The page does not ask you to upload a portfolio, identity document or payment information.

02 / Your chosen language

A language preference is kept in this browser's local storage. It is a convenience for your next visit, not a profile shared with another website.

03 / Requesting a preview

The form sends the email address and studio or company name you enter for server-side validation. This preview does not retain the submission or enrol you in a mailing list.

04 / Selections stay lightweight

Changing a material tone or browsing the work changes the on-page presentation. These controls do not create a saved customer project or an order.

05 / The delivery of a page

Hosting systems receive connection information such as an IP address and request details. Operational records, where enabled, are separate from the preview form.

06 / Leaving without a trace of preference

You can reset the saved language through your browser's site-data controls. Do not put confidential briefs or a client's personal information into the preview fields.

A successful form response confirms validation only. It does not confirm a retained enquiry or a forthcoming invitation.